TODAY

How the examples look now

Every card starts with the same four marks: the question, the wood block, the ticking. The endings differ only in how many small circles come before the big one, all in the same grey outline. Read side by side, the cards look alike.

A simple voice note

Create one task

Create three tasks

Send a message

Quasi asks which Alex

Set a reminder

Start a timer

You change your mind

The internet is gone

The audio did not arrive

Nobody is listening

DIRECTION 1

The melody, drawn

Each note sits as high as it sounds, and a thin line joins them, so the card shows the tune: a message leaps up, calling off steps down, a timer goes back and forth, a question is left hanging. The shared start shrinks and greys out. Orange is what the app did; ink is what went wrong. The most faithful to the sounds, and the most like a score.

A simple voice note

Create one task

Create three tasks

Send a message

Quasi asks which Alex

Set a reminder

Start a timer

You change your mind

The internet is gone

The audio did not arrive

Nobody is listening

DIRECTION 2

A shape for each kind

The shared start shrinks and greys out, as in direction 1, and every kind of answer gets a small shape of its own before the closing circle: little boxes for tasks (still counted one by one), a bell for a reminder, a leap for a message, tick-tock strokes for a timer, a step back for calling off. A filled circle means something was done; an open one, that nothing was. The easiest to tell apart at a glance.

A simple voice note

Create one task

Create three tasks

Send a message

Quasi asks which Alex

Set a reminder

Start a timer

You change your mind

The internet is gone

The audio did not arrive

Nobody is listening

DIRECTION 3

One badge per answer

The shared start becomes one short grey strip, the same on every card, and the answer is one badge. What it did is drawn inside it: the number of tasks as dots, a bell, a clock face, an arrow out. Something done is filled orange; a note kept, a question or calling off is an outline. The calmest, and the furthest from the sounds as heard.

A simple voice note

Create one task

Create three tasks

Send a message

Quasi asks which Alex

Set a reminder

Start a timer

You change your mind

The internet is gone

The audio did not arrive

Nobody is listening